Lookin' Around with 'Mac'

We are getting used to one mail delivery a day; postoffice economy doesn't hurt nearly as much as some squawkers thought it would. Postmaster Bill Wasley says there hasn't been even a small riot as a result of earlier closing of mail windows at the local postoffice. A few forgot the new 5 p.m. closing time but soon got used to the idea.

The point is, effective government must start to economize somewhere and the postoffice is as good a place as any. But there is false reasoning in assuming that reduction of efficiency and scope of this department will overcome the perpetual "deficit." Greatest loss falls in delivery of congressional and other governmental mail and in subsidies to railroads, steamship and air lines. Why not place the charges with these departments, where they belong?

Speaking of the mounting expense of government reminds us of a letter written by a rocking-chair manufacturer to his congressman. Here is the latter as it appeared in the San Francisco News:

"I am in the furniture business and am writing this letter to request that you obtain for me a subsidy on our platform rockers. We are now making about a thousand a year and are eager to step up this production to 50,000 . . .

"Now we would like a guaranteed price of $50 each for these rockers. In the event we are unable to sell all of them, we will arrange to burn them right here at the factory rather than go to the expense of shipping them somewhere else to be destroyed. I notice that you paid $2.90 a bag for potatoes in Maine and then shipped them to Chicago, which raised the cost to $4 a bag, and then sold them to farmers for 1c a bag.

"I realize that (the rocking-

MASONIC LODGE COMPLETES 100 YEARS IN CITY

Nevada Lodge No. 13, F. & A. M., one year older than the California Grand lodge, will observe its one hundredth anniversary tomorrow and Sunday.

The observance also will be a salute to three past grand masters of the California lodge and a high tribute to five members of the lodge whose years with the local Masonic organization total 276.

Past grand masters are George L. Jones and William H. Taylor of the Nevada lodge, and Lester E. Wood, Sacramento, the guest speaker.

The veteran members of the local lodge and their years of membership are Ben Hall, 60; Alfred Martin, 59; Joseph Stenger, 54; George A. Legg, 53, and Tom Coan, 50.

More than 100 Masons from other California lodges are expected to attend the observance.

Records and relics of the lodge dating back to 1861 will be on display. Records previous to that year were destroyed in the series of fires that swept the city in the early days.

Members of Evangeline Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will serve a baked ham dinner tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock in the Masonic hall.

Sunday will be featured by a concert at Pioneer park at 2 p.m. by the Shrine band and Chanters from Sacramento.

John Sbaffi and Thomas Lawrence are in charge of tickets for the affair.. Ray Worthley past master is chairman of the committee. Other members of the committee include Charles Elliott, Stenger, Sbaffi and Bradley Legg.

Joseph F. Stenger, Master of Nevada Lodge, will preside as master of ceremonies.

Stan Halls, Nevada City insurance man, found human bones while preparing ground for a new home he will build on Nihell street. On further examination he found four unmarked graves, each containing very aged human bones.

Since he found no identification of any kind, he assumes his building site was used as an impromptu burial ground for unknown Chinese perhaps 80 or 90 years ago.

COUNTY BOARD STILL OPPOSED TO PRISON CAMP

Supervisors Warren Odell, Jay Coughlan and Frank J. Rowe remained adamant in their opposition to a prison camp in Nevada county at the board's June session. Carl J. Tobiassen took an ambiguous stand and Henry G. Loehr expressed approval of the prison camp.

Approval of the camp was sought by a delegation composed of representatives from the California department of corrections, division of forestry, Chambers of Commerce and Lions clubs from Nevada City and Grass Valley, Nevada county employment committee and the Tri-Counties building and construction trades council.

The delegation held a three-hour session with the board of supervisors Friday.

The board tabled a request for three additional deputies by R. W. Hoskins, sheriff.

The board appointed a five-man aeronautic commission to work with W. B. Wisenand, airport design engineer of the California aeronautics commission to appraise Loma Rica airport. The board named Carlos McGuire, John Loose and Gil Cramer of Grass Valley, and John Fortier and Downey Clinch of Nevada City, to serve on the air board.

A delegation from Banner Mt. Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, appeared before the board to inquire about the status of the proposed veterans building in Nevada City.

J. F. O'Connor, surveyor, reported a contour map had been mailed to the state architecture board two weeks ago.

The board passed an ordinance liberalizing smoking regulations in Nevada county.

The board accepted the personnel survey report recently conducted for the county.

JENNIE LAMSON NAMED

Miss Jennie Lamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lamson, Town Talk, has been named to Student Travelers of Reed college, Portland, Ore., for her sophomore term next year.

PLAYGROUND AT PARK READY FOR YOUNGSTERS

The Nevada City Junior Chamber of Commerce has another achievement chalked up for itself — erection of playground equipment at Pioneer park accomplished Sunday by a crew of volunteer workmen under the direction of George Halstead.

The achievement followed on the heels of a very successful teen-age dance Friday evening at Elks hall.

The equipment was constructed by the manual training class of Nevada City high school under the direction of Al Woods, who was busy Sunday with welding torches.

The equipment placed by the approximately 25 willing workers included sand boxes, monkey bars, parallel bars, merry-go-round, swings, teeter-totters and swing mounts.

A potluck luncheon was dished out at the picnic grounds by the wives of the workmen.

BROWN HAS 90 VOTE LEAD FOR SHERIFF OFFICE

Wayne Brown, Grass Valley oil distributor, appears to be the next sheriff of Nevada county on the basis of unofficial returns of Nevada county's primary election Tuesday. Brown leads the incumbent, Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins by 90 votes with a total of 3,556 votes to 3,466 votes for Hoskins. There are 264 absentee ballots to be counted Tuesday.

Brown carried every Nevada City precinct, losing only Gold Flat No. 2 in the first supervisorial district. Brown was also very strong in North San Juan, Rough and Ready, and Forest Springs.

Hoskins was very strong in Truckee and carried most of the outlying precincts and had a slight edge in Grass Valley.

With outlying precincts reporting early Hoskins built up a 300 vote lead in the first 22 complete precincts, but when the Nevada City returns started coming in the lead faded and Brown went out in front.

THREE FIND PLENTY FISH NEAR BOWMAN

A lot of our local Izaak Waltons have been complaining that there are no fish in the mountain lakes—but apparently it isn't so. Three Yuba City men, E. E. Stohlman, Jim Blivens and G. W. Wallace, found plenty in Faucherie lake, near Bowman dam last Saturday. In fact they had 11 limits and 11 spares when Nevada County Game Warden John Wentzel found them.

Brought before Justice of the Peace George W. Gildersleeve, our white-thatched judge turned a cold and fishy eye on their fishing prowress and luck and fined each of them $225 and revoked their licenses.

MAN'S TOUCH SEEN IN THE TAHOE FOREST — BUT THERE ARE STILL VAST RESOURCES YET UNTOUCHED

By WILSON McKENNEY

It would take months of slow travel by jeep to see what I saw in two hours Tuesday afternoon from a forest service airplane.

Glueing your eyes to a million-acre patch of forests, lakes, roads, and rivers bring you at best a kaleidoscopic impression of Nature's rugged creation into which Man has thrust a daring but feeble hand. That is the strange part about the air tour: expecting to find primitive grandeur, my attention was held by the dams, lumber mills, highways, and towns which Man has set down in the Tahoe national forest.

Guerdon Ellis, boss-man of the Tahoe forest for the past eleven years, has seen his domain from the air many times. He can describe it well, speaks of it with a fond familiarity like a proud father talks about his growing son. When a man's chief responsibility is to preserve and protect a million and a quarter acres of water shed and pine he gets that way.

Pilot Stephen Ayers flew us in a four-place Beechcraft. Charlie Everhart, administrative officer of the Tahoe office in Nevada City, completed the quartet. Our circle route was by way of Camptonville, Sierra City, Lake Bowman, Foresthill, Auburn and back to Nevada City airport.

Every one of the debris basins—the Narrows, Bullard's Bar, Combie, and others—were overflowing. Over the crests of great concrete dams sheets of white water were falling. At this season of peak runoff, you could imagine you saw millions of unharnessed kilowatts running off to sea. That the potential resources in electrical power development have been only partly tapped right at our back door even a simple layman can see. I had thought Bullard's Bar dam large when I saw it on the ground but the Narrows looks larger from the air. A dozen miles west of Nevada City, the Narrows holds back the main stream of the Yuba, a long twisting reservoir of greenish yellow water carrying the burden of seasonal hydraulic mining. By contrast, Combie reservoir on the Bear river is a clear lake blue, indicating there is little if any debris from mining operations at the south edge of the county.

Where Man's hand has appeared most frequently in the forests is in the lumbering business. It is apparent that tremendous labors have been expended in hewing a criss-cross pattern of roads through large tracts of pine. And every twenty miles or so are sawmills and drying yards, marked by plumes of white smoke. Great slices of forest are reserved to each lumber operator. Working on a permanent "sustained yield" basis, the larger operators

HOOPER RE-ELECTED COUNTY CORONER

Alvah Hooper, who with Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins, were the only candidates for major county offices with opposition, was returned to office by a vote of 3,475 to 3,186 for J. Paul Bergemann, Nevada City mortician.

Incumbents elected without opposition included Walter A. Carlson, superintendent of schools; Ralph E. Deeble, county clerk and auditor; Miss Elma Hecker, treasurer and tax collector; Vernon Stoll, district attorney; John E. Nettell, recorder; Theodore A. Kohler, Jr., public administrator; and J. F. O'Connor, surveyor.

William Tamblyn, deputy assessor was elected to the post held by Philip G. Scadden, who decided to retire from public life this year.

Jerome Coughlan was re-elected supervisor of the third district without opposition.

Fosten Wilson defeated Mrs. Ethel Buell for justice of peace of Meadow Lake township. C. A. Morehouse of Grass Valley and George W. Gildersleeve of Nevada City were re-elected justices of peace without opposition.

N. F. Dolley was elected Meadow Lake township constable without opposition.

Arthur Hammond was returned as Grass Valley constable defeating Leo McGrath 2,084 to 1,839.

IF I WERE SEVENTEEN

Last night 42 young men and women entered their commencement of adult life—the simple act of J. Paul Bergemann presenting each with a scroll of paper symbolizing completion of their preparatory schooling accomplishing the transition.

To every grown person in whom decomposition has started, who feels the years crowd in with loss of muscle tone, reflex rapidity, and visibly so with receding hair and sight and growing paunch, there comes a time when retrospect brings thoughts of the years gone by. "What would I do if I had the years to spend once more?"

Psychologists claim the truly young in heart look only forward to the years ahead, but it is obviously impossible to forget the known past in the face of the unknown future. Every grown person thinks that if he had another chance he would set the world afire with achievement.

Look at the popularity of the sport of second-guessing —the Monday quarterbacks, the post-mortem baseball stategists. In retrospect a person feels he would omit his mistakes. Perhaps he might make more colossal mistakes, and then again perhaps the successes would succeed again, the failure fail again.

But if I in the light of my 36 years, could go back to the day when I was 17 and stand in the place of these young graduates of Nevada City high school, I would first of all wipe from my mind the adage that opportunity knocks only once. Opportunity is knocking all the time.

I would work hard and play hard. I would not aspire or look for sudden wealth nor would I place my standards on a financial basis. At 17 one never expects to die, one feels sorry when he stands at the coffin of a friend but doesn't think on the day when he'll be in a grave. I'll expect death—not wanting it but not fearing it.

I would not search the world over for a location. I would not hesitate to live forever in the town of my birth.

If I were 17 I would form friendships with those who would be mutually useful and tolerant. I would not ask a friend to indorse my note and seldom would I ask him for a loan of money—the fortune that endures is started by one's own strength and achievement. And I would try to enjoy life and friendships as I went along.

I would try to learn as early as possible that whatever comes must come with joy or sorrow enjoying the first and enduring sorrow with fortitude and with as little self-pity as possible.

I would neither repudiate a debt nor lie.

I would want to know all I could about the earth, the sky, the sea, the universe. I would read books, enjoy music, dancing and creative arts. I would want to work in the soil, planting and growing living things. I would try to maintain health.

I would expect to marry, have children, and rejoice in their talents. And should fame and fortune come my way I would hope to accept them with humility and grace.—kww.

TIPS FOR FISHERMEN

As California anglers take to lakes and streams for their annual dose of mental therapy called trout fishing, the Division of Fish and Game comes up with a few tips for more enjoyable sport.

In many cases, the state agency advises, anglers will pursue their trout in waters or adjacent property which are privately owned. This trespassed property, and even state and federal waters, should be respected as it would be if it were the angler's own.

This consideration for the landowner should pay off in many ways to the angler's advantage.

Other suggestions from the division:

Build fires only in designated places; observe the fish and game laws; leave livestock, fences, farm buildings and equipment unmolested; close all gates.

AND THEY'RE NICE TO LOOK AT

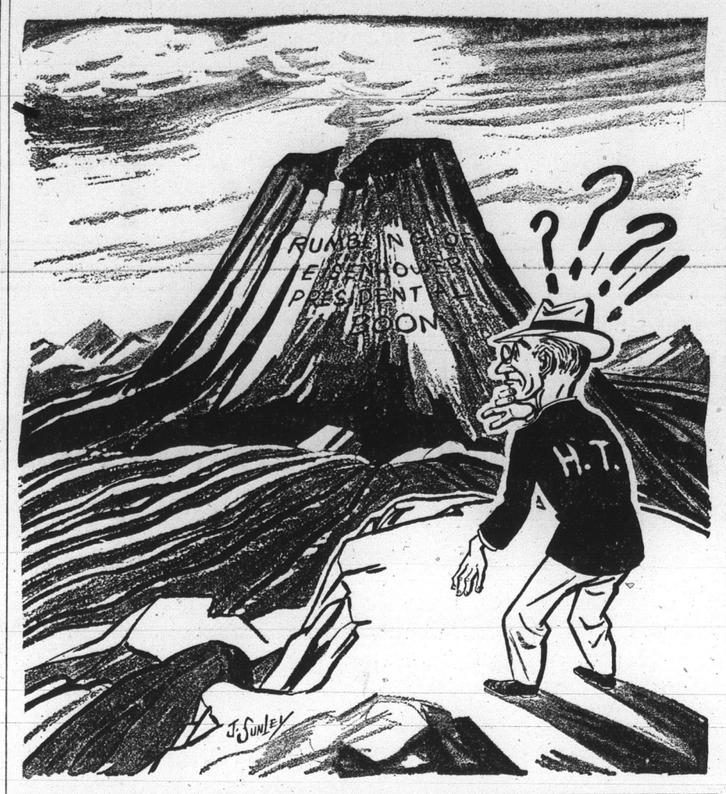
Girls are like newspapers. They are healthier and stronger than they used to be. They have many type faces. They are worth looking over. Back numbers aren't in demand. They aren't afraid to speak their mind. They can make or break a man. They have influence. They carry news wherever they go. If they know anything they tell it. Every guy should have one and leave his neighbor's alone.—Rock Rapids, Iowa, Reporter.

In character, in manner, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity.—Longfellow.

The art of art, the glory of expression and the sunshine of the light of letters, is simplicity.—Whitman.

What is true, simple and sincere is most congenial to man's nature.—Cicero.

An Eruption Soon?



Just Wonderin'

I Wonder at the various things
Which now demand attention—
The status of the world at large,
Discovery and invention;
Election day is of the past,
But Father's day is near
So here's to Dad and may his day
Be filled with loving cheer.

What did you think of the election results? Well, whether we were altogether pleased with the outcome or not, at least we had a free election and each one of us, I hope, registered his or her will.

Did every one vote? Did some one say, "What good will my vote do?" One little vote might make quite a difference; it has many times in the past, it will again in the future. Once upon a time, one of our presidents was in danger of impeachment. There must have been many heated arguments, much name calling, many fevered accusations to bring such a thing as that to pass, but there it was, and just by the flimsy margin of one vote was the national disgrace averted. Next time we are called upon to cast a ballot, let's recognize our own dignity as citizens of a country where elections are free and hie ourselves to the polls to deposit that one little vote that may, even though we do not know it, be of such vast significance.

I Wonder how we the people go about the task of selecting the father of the year; what are his extra special qualifications? What does he do to stand so pre-eminently above all other fathers and gain for himself the title, Father of the Year?

There are so many fathers—millions of them, in fact. He who earns the title—father of the year—must be greater than he who taketh a city.

I hope that the fathers of the land will be very happy upon the day set aside in their honor; I hope that their dear ones will demonstrate love and affection for the king of the empire called home and let him know that he is supreme in the hearts of those who love him.

Remembering my own relationship with the man I called "papa" I feel truly sorry for any boy or girl who fails to make a pal of dad. Such a palship is good for both father and child and from it are woven the memories that bless all future years.

There would be fewer adolescent criminals, fewer wayward boys and girls if father and child were truly pals and it is the duty of father to foster this close relationship between himself and his children from their earliest years. If such a relationship once existed and for some reason has been lost, seek to regain it, for the loving companionship of father and child is one of the most precious of earthly memories to keep and to hold through the years.

Chum up, you fathers and children, get truly acquainted, seek to find interests in common, confide in one another, use this precious relationship as a means of enriching your lives and building better and finer characters and more beauty for the present and for the future.

If mother is the Queen of the home, and we know that she is, then of a certainty, father is the King. May his be a beneficient reign and may his loving subjects find in him a counsellor and friend, not in some family crisis, but every day of every year that the relationship is existant.

ADELINE MERRIAM CONNER.

The greatest truths are the simplest; and so are the greatest men.—Ware.

Elegance of language may not be in the power of all of us; but simplicity and straightforwardness are. —Alford.

This day is all that is good and fair. It is too dear, with its hopes and invitations, to waste a moment on the yesterdays.—Emerson.

YELLOWJACKET BUZZINGS

By Darleen Crowley

The corridors of Nevada City high school this week have been full of a lot of happy faces and why not? This was the last week of school. Preparations for graduation and the closing of school have kept everyone as busy as bees. Graduation held yesterday evening went over perfectly, with the high school choir directed by William Tobiassen doing some beautiful numbers. They presented a wonderful rendition of the school hymn, "Ho, a Cheer for Gold and Purple." The girls were dressed in formals and the boys in dark suits made the chorus look better than ever. Last June 1, Miss Helen Chapman, at a special meeting of the Girls' League was presented an exquisite necklace and earring set by Joan Oje, president of the organization.

Baccalaureate services held on Sunday, included the invocation by Rev. John MacDonald; "The Cherubim Song No. 7" and "Great God of Nations" by the high school chorus; baccalaureate address by Rev. George Pearson; "Now the Day Is Over" by the high school chorus; and benediction by Rev. MacDonald.

Miss Helen Chapman showed several of the classes a motion picture of the world series baseball games of 1949. Other pictures shown through the week have been "Placer Gold," "Mexican Children," and "The Story of Coffee."

The high school picnic went as scheduled Wednesday afternoon despite the rain of Tuesday. The picnic was held at Pioneer park, with dancing, swimming, baseball and other various games enjoyed by everyone.

Student body officers were voted on Tuesday.

At an assembly this morning, honor roll and other awards will be presented. Following the assembly report cards will be issued and school will be dismissed until Tuesday, Sept. 5.

So, until next September, when I'll write more about our school and what goes on out there, I'll say so-long and I hope everyone has a marvelous vacation.

SAM BEDWELL HAS A FAVORITE DELICACY

Sam Bedwell, the genial operator of the Alleghany Express and carrier of Uncle Sam's mail between here and the Sierra county community, and Forest City, is famous for his genius of keeping women and lawyers speechless. But Sam has another accomplishment, we have discovered this week. Sam is a culinary expert.

His favorite recipe is roast pigeon.

Pigeons in this area feed principally on acorns, which in addition to giving them an extra strong flavor, also tends to make them exceptionally tough and as a result roast wild pigeon does not appear on local tables very often.

Sam's recipe recommends that the pigeon be par-boiled at least three hours, then placed on an oblong oak board and put in a moderately hot oven to bake for three hours and 15 minutes, removed from oven and seasoned to taste with a generous sprinkling of Oklahoma drawl, then return to the oven to bake for 45 minutes. Remove from oven, throw away the pigeon and eat the board.

JOBS WANTED FOR STUDENT EMPLOYMENT SERVICE IN AREA

Residents of the Nevada City area have a new and convenient way of getting their weekend summer chores done. A student employment service, operated without charge by Nevada City High School Parent-Teachers association is getting under way with an initial labor force of 125 energetic high school boys and girls.

In a recent questionaire, students indicated eagerness to work at more than thirty types of jobs. These include milking, harvesting, typing, bookkeeping, clerking, housework, wood-chopping, brush clearing, tractor driving, gardening, mowing, caring for sick, cleaning barns, candling eggs and many other jobs.

"Many persons in this area need part-time help," said Michel Lipman, chairman of the PTA juvenile protection committee, but they hesitate to seek it thru the usual channels. We can provide them with that help at a smaller cost than they would pay an adult, or that an adult might be willing to take.

"Although full time jobs for students are scarce, we believe that many residents have lawns to mow, furniture to paint, babies to sit. In offering such jobs to high school students, these folks are not only getting bargain help for themselves, they are assisting our young persons 'to get the feel' of useful employment."

Lipman emphasized that people who phone in to request a student are not obligated to accept him. They are free to accept or reject, and to make whatever arrangements for payment they desire. No charge or fee of any kind is made.

Headquarters will be maintained at the home of Mrs. Kent Walker, president of the local chapter. To ask for a student worker, telephone 258-R, or write Student Employment Service, at 710 Zion street, Nevada City.

DAMSELS BY A DAM SITE—Five young damsels participating in the Shasta Centennial, set for Redding June 11-18, visit mighty Shasta Dam, where significant features of the celebration will center. The dam will be officially dedicated the afternoon of June 17, and the night before there will be a spectacular fireworks display on Shasta Lake. Posed on the powerhouse terrace, with the huge spillway as background, left to right—Joanne Lawrence, Jeannie Downs, Evelyn McReynolds, Wanda Jones and Mary Lee Logsdon.

REPLICA OF LIBERTY BELL HERE JUNE 16

The exact replica of the Independence bell will be on display in Nevada City on Friday, June 16, in the evening, the exact time to be announced later, according to Kenneth Adams, assistant county chairman for the savings bond drive. It is one of forty-nine exact duplicates of the liberty bell touring the nation during the U. S. treasury's independance savings bonds drive May 15 through July 4.

"These bells will ring out a message of thrift, and urge all Americans to 'Save for your Independence,'" Adams said.

The full-scale copies of the historic shrine in Philadelphia have been donated by the copper industry of the nation, each bell weighing 2,080 pounds, being the exact size of the original and will have the same tone.

Adams said the bell would be on tour in this vicinity to stimulate sales and awareness of the savings bond program and would be the focal point of all drive plans.

Here is a chance to hear a bell that has been silent since 1835.

chair subsidy) would be small potatoes to the billion-dollar programs that you are accustomed to, but perhaps you can start a new bureau or something to raise the ante and get it in the billion-dollar bracket. I certainly cannot see that I am asking anything unreasonable, as I have paid taxes all my life and have never received a check from my government."

We're wondering if Clair Engle wouldn't like to see a similarly persuasive argument favoring a subsidy on newspapers? But wouldn't that be a parody on the free press in a democracy? We'd rather starve—gallantly—if you please!

MEET YOUR NEIGHBOR

By Clayre S. Lipman

GEORGE CHRISTIAN HANSEN

George Hansen, who ladles out buckets of color in his Broad street paint shop, wouldn't be in California if Great-Grandpappy George White Pitkin had his say . . . Seems like Pitkin, who made the cross-plains jaunt on foot back in 1847 with Heber Kimball, leader of the Third Company of Mormon pioneers, liked Salt Lake City all right, but wanted to go on west. He sauntered over to the coast to see what was going on in California—didn't like what he saw . . . retied his bootlaces and trudged back to Logan, Utah, by way of Oregon. Good thing for George that he did though . . . because that was where George's Grandmother Maria Wood, met his Grandfather, George Orin Pitkin.

In the course of events, George did get to California . . . the Bay Area . . . where he was kept busy raising a family on paint. Vacations and holidays found him headed for the Land of Pines to fish. When business interfered with his piscatorial pursuits, the family packed up, bag, baggage, trout rods and paint stock . . . been here almost five years now . . . Live on Boulder but plan to build up on Banner Ridge soon.

George's father, Alma Hansen, dealt in buckets, too—of milk. Someone must have given the youngster a brush once, because he started slapping color around on walls while still young. A painting contractor, both he and his wife, Peg, the former Eleanor Burns of Oakland, are interior decorators . . . go in for window decoration as well as paints, and handle a line of draperies, wallpaper, venetian blinds . . . and art suppiies.

"Color," says George, "can affect one's health and personality. That's a fact. To live with the wrong color can make a person physically ill. Of course, difference colors affect people differently. So if you don't feel well and your eyes ache, maybe it isn't vitamins you need, but a new paint job on your kitchen walls!"

When George isn't ladling out Sea-Green Maroons, and Dreamy Cream Purples, he's either stalking the finny denizens or puttin' on an act. That's no figure of speech; with the inimitable Frank Stewart and the versatile Bob Paine, he has put on many a riproaring show for the Elks and others . . . The mime in him finds its greatest expression in out-female-impersonating female impersonators . . . Slap a blonde wig on him, let him wriggle—the word is accurate—into a decollette evening gown, and listen to him warble, "I'm the Lonesomest Gal in Town" . . . in the Beatrice Kay manner. Other of his impersonations feature the songs of Dorothy Shay and Doris Day . . . "Temptation" with Grass Valley's talented Mel Davis, is a show-stopper!

George is a past president of the C of C, was president of the reviving Sierra-Nevada C of C, a member of the LDS, and an officer in the Elks. Current activities include finding a flock of aspiring queens for the city's July 4th celeb . . . The Hansens have a married son, George Keith Hansen, living at Oakland and Granddaughter, Gayle . . . are busy painting their shop a bright chartreuse yellow with black trim. The world should have no trouble finding the way to Hansen's door!

like Cal-Ida near the site of old Brandy City hardly make a dent in the forest. They take approximately 40 percent of the mature growth as they march through, leaving 60 percent plus more sunlight and better chance for growth of the young stuff.

Ellis said the policy of the forest service is to encourage the sustained yield program, which presupposes that every 60 to 80 years the forest completely restores itself. If lumbering were permitted on an unlimited scale, the pine could be cut in ten years and the entire industry would be wiped out. I inferred that one of Ellis' private headaches is pacifying the lumbermen who grumble that they can't buy stumpage, that the present policy gives a break only to the big operators. From the air the sustained yield policy makes sense; the forests are still there and it looks as though they will remain.

At one point in Guerdon's commentary I had the feeling we were viewing a patient on a sick bed. He pointed out the large areas of brush-land, conspicuous on ledges and rounded domes. Result of old fires and uncontrolled lumbering, he said. It seems there is no economical way to reforest these areas except to let Nature take its course. That means protect the denuded areas from fire and axes for a hundred years. Heavy brush, rodents, wild life, and disease make it tough for a young pineling (!) to make a decent start in life. All man can do is give it time. If we consider the point morosely, the patient lay sprawled below us, its hair falling out, bald spots appearing, and its veins and arteries swollen and discolored by debris.

But on the whole the Tahoe forest looks like a husky healthy youngster, full of vitality and much in need of a guiding hand.

As we turned along the Middle Fork of the American we looked down on a dense stand of sugar pine. "Best stand in the forest," Guerdon says. Undistinguishable somewhere along Mosquito ridge are the seven giant Sequoias which somehow survived in their northernmost Sierra foothold. Opening up that magnificent forest to Man's use is a fine forest service road—cost something like $1,750,000 I think Ellis said. A beautiful piece of engineering if you see beauty in half-circle bridges, wide radius curves, and practical grades on precipitous mountainsides. The road gave new vitality to the little village of Foresthill and assured a perpetual local payroll centering in the American River Sugar Pine Co. And it makes a Republican heart beat with joy to learn that this road of fantastic cost will all be paid for with sawed timbers; the taxpayer only advances the dough on a safe business deal.

You can't observe much about mining from the air, but the scars are visible. The ancient hydraulic cliffs do not look bad but the wide sickly white alluvial fans where the streams meet the floor of the wide valley foretell the dangers of unlimited washing of soil. Buildings of the Idaho-Maryland look like an immense factory from up yonder.

You can't see recreation either—that is, you can't see it as a tangible economic asset. But you know that there are thousands of miles of shaded roads, trails with scented pine-needles underfoot, still pools in which trout lie in wait for a fisherman's hook, azure lakes set in primitive beauty. It might be an airy view, but I believe it's nevertheless important, that Man will belatedly recognize the forests for their true value when he is weary from mad money-making.

There are other sound assets in those mountains, too—water. Impounded in scores of lakes is that precious stuff the whole state of California wants so badly. Not only good to look at, our water is an essential to the expanding populations. Unless we guard it well, including the agencies who administer its distribution, we could lose our most valuable asset. We could survive without gold but not without water!

Man's hand is seen on the soil, too, but in agriculture he seems to show the poorest judgment. Hilltops have been scraped off and shelves terraced along streams for pitiful little farms. Submarginal land, the farm economists would call it, and the chances for making a living from this shallow soil is exceedingly slim. True, there are areas of fertile soil but they lie mostly below the foothills. It might be possible for a part-time farmer to nurture a few acres and prove the soil and climate ideal to his purpose. But from my bird's-eye view, it would appear that promoting the sale of submarginal land for agricultural purposes is a disservice to the community.

We circled over the home town and picked out familiar landmarks then Steve brought us smoothly down on the hilltop where Bill Swain operates the municipal airport. It was a nice flight and a memorable experience, made more spectacular by a ceiling of clouds and a display of lightning. One thought I will carry always, even after memory dims the vast panoramas: We swiftly crossed the old pioneer emigrant trails and the fated Donner route . . . what tools man has wrought for his convenience in this century of progress! Time is the essence of life, especially in the forest.

LOCAL CENSUS MAN IS FIRST TO FINISH COUNT

Lowell T. Galt, chief of the census field division in Washington, confirmed claim of Harold Berliner, local supervisor of this census district, that he was the first to complete the task of counting noses in the U. S.

Berliner announced the district which includes the counties of Nevada, Alpine, Placer, Sierra, Amador, Calaveras, Tuolumne, Mariposa, Inyo, Mono, and El Dorado, has a total population of 129,436 persons.

Among incidents Berliner enumerated about the task he cited one census taker had to row to an island in Lake Tahoe to count one man and snow-blocked roads were a major problem.

The Sierra Booster, Loyalton newspaper, charged the census taking in Sierra county, which reported a 22 percent decrease, was incomplete and inaccurate. Hal Wright, the publisher, stated Berliner's count of newspapers in the 11 counties overlooked four journals, "so how many Sierra county residents were overlooked?"

Clyde Fisk, Nevada City, is in county jail, on a charge of passing lewd pictures to a girl student of the Nevada City elementary school. Lloyd Geist, principal of the school, signed the complaint.

HISTORICAL TOUR TO MOORE'S FLAT IS SET FOR SUNDAY, JULY 23

Fifth annual historic tour of Nevada County Historical Society will be held Sunday, July 23, according to Robert Paine, who is arranging the tour.

Paine revealed details of the tour at a meeting of the society Sunday at Twamley hall, North San Juan, Sunday. The tour will include North Bloomfield, Lake City, Graniteville and Moore's Flat.

Mrs. Isabel Hefelfiner, president of the society, reported efforts are being made to obtain an annex to the society's museum on Main street to house the exhibits which are increasing rapidly.

The Chinese joss house, once an important tourist attraction in Grass Valley, may also be displayed again, Mrs. Hefelfinger said.

The society will place a marker on the French Corral schoolhouse. Mrs. Hefelfinger urged ridge residents to find and mark the grave of Prof. Davis, famous Nevada county instructor.

Mrs. Catherine Peters and Mrs. Cecil Wilson sang "Let the Rest of the World Go by" and "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen," and Frank and Gene Stuart presented a cornet and violin duet of "Springtime in the Rockies" and "Beautiful Ohio."

R. C. Hill was chairman of a committee in charge of arrangements for the meeting. Members of the committee were Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Atchinson, Mrs. Amelia Cunningham and Ed J. Kohler. Several early day relics were displayed and Hill had identified the sites of early day buildings and business houses.

GRASS VALLEY MEN BUY GOLD NUGGET

James McConnell and William Chambers, both of Grass Valley, have purchased the Gold Nugget Inn, Glenbrook, from Frank Mertens. Date of sale was June 1.

McConnell and Chambers state they will continue the service as it has been established by Mertens. The dining and bar business has become a popular rendezvous for county clubs and organizations.

The purchase included the business, license and physical property.

HISTORICAL MUSEUM RECEIVES MORE ITEMS

The Nevada County Historical Society museum was the recipient of many gifts during the week. George Carter gave a child's pair of shoes made by Tom Harris, a North San Juan shoemaker.

Mrs. Minnie Young presented an elaborate baby dress, which is 78 years old.

Mrs. Rae Gates and son, Jim, have loaned a large Chinese ginger jar, a shell chest, brought to Nevada City after the fire of 1851 by Mrs. Mary Tomkins, a metate, which is a flat grinding tool, and a mano, a hand tool used to grind corn on the stone metate for tortilla making. It was brought to Nevada county from Mexico in 1850 by Mrs. McNally.

Seventy-three persons visited the museum last weekend. Out-of-state visitors were Thomas A. C. Mathus III, Philadelphia, Pa.; Low D. Foster, Honolulu, T. H.; Sergeant and Mrs. H. D. Frasier, Rice Lake, Wisc.; and Sergeant and Mrs. J. W. Littzen, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

The museum, located at 214 Main street, Nevada City, will be open this Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Custodians will be Mrs. Fannie Eden and Mrs. R. C. Martens.

SWIMMING POOL WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Ice skates are more in season this week, but Verle "Puss" Gray is going ahead with plans to open the municipal swimming pool today for such hardy swimmers who care to brave the rigorous weather.

Gray said the pool will be open today, tomorrow and Sunday and then will close for a few days for cleaning and renovating.

Seniors of Nevada City high school held their picnic at the pool Wednesday and yesterday the graduating class of the elementary school held a picnic at the pool.

BANK HAS NEW DRESS

Bustin' out all over with a bright paint job, the Nevada City branch of Bank of America glistens in its new spring dress. Painted pure white with a base of dark green, the building contrasts with the dark brown of the sign lettering. Hansen paint store did the work.

RUFFIANS MEEK AS HARTMAN'S BIG HOP WORKS

Dick Penrose and Lynn Roath pitched excellent ball against the powerful Merchants in Roseville Saturday night but they ran up against a masterpiece of pitching by speedball artist, Jack Hartman, who threw a two-hitter 6-0 shutout against the Athletics.

Hartman, who is very effective under the light, was superb Saturday, whiffing 14 and going into the sixth inning before the Nevada City batters were able to dent him for a hit.

Hartman whiffed Jones and Seay on six straight pitches and good sized crowd of fans knew the Ruffians would probably be tamed by Hartman's fast hop. They were—in fact the Ruffians were very meek most of the evening.

Penrose after a shaky first inning when the Merchants got four hits and three runs off him, settled down and pitched good ball the other three innings he toiled. Roath pitched the last four and gave up four hits and an unearned run.

Childers took Hartman's seventh pitch for a called strike and then couldn't duck his fast in. Childers was felled like an ox and Deward went to first as a courtesy runner. Goldsberry was safe on Carbone's error, but Hartman fanned Stack to end the inning.

Clark greeted Penrose with a single and was sacrified to second. O'Shaughnessy dumped a Texas leaguer double into right field and the Merchants had a run that eventually proved sufficient. Jensen slammed a double against the left field fence and Greenhagh singled for a home team 3-0 lead.

The Merchants added two unearned runs in the third when Wojack bobbled a third out.

Goldsberry got the first hit for the Athletics a double off the right field fence, and advanced to third on Stack's right field fly but there he died on base.

Wojack singled in the seventh and was pushed to second on a walk to Roath. Wojack was out at home when he tried to score on Jones' infield grounder.

The rest of the game Hartman was in complete control.

The Athletics travel to Truckee Sunday for the final game of the first half in what might be a rough go—the Mountaineers upset the Placerville Bartletts 12 to 9 last Saturday night.

Steve Pelayo said Lynn Roath will be the starting pitcher with Ains Fouyer catching. Childers on first, Haddy on second, Penrose on short, and Gagliardi on third will form the infield. Jones, Seay and Deward will form the outfield. Goldsberry and Stack will not be available for the trip to Truckee.

Edmund Brown won both parties' balloting in Nevada county in the race for attorney general. Edward S. Shattuck trailed him on both tickets and Fred Howser was third.

In Nevada county Richard Nixon led the Republican vote for U. S. senator and Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas captured the Democratic vote.

ANSWER

It has been my unalterable principle, in the conduct of a campaign for public office, to respect the dignity of that office by refraining from the use of innuendos and half-truths in campaign statements.

The recent campaign for the Office of Sheriff of Nevada County was singularly free of "political mud slinging," with one exception. In this I congratulate my opponent.

The one exception referred to was "an open letter to the Sheriff of Nevada County" over the name of George L. Jones, published in this paper on Friday, June 2, 1950, on the eve of the election.

The statements therein contained were the opinion solely of the writer and were deliberate, intentional and willful utterances of half truths made solely for the purpose of misleading the voting public. Mr. Jones was in a position to know the full truth and did in fact know the full truth, yet he deliberately misrepresented the fact that certain individuals (resigned members of "The Nevada County Sheriff's Posse") were members of my staff.

The Sheriff's Posse of Nevada County is an independent organization. Its membership includes many of the County's leading citizens. The Sheriff of the County is ex-officio the Honorary Chief of that organization.

Each member of the Posse is deputized but not an active member of the Sheriff's Staff unless called out for emergency.

All of this was well known to Mr. Jones, but in his bigoted crusade against "Nickel-in-the-Slot Machines" he has forgotten the decency and dignity of public office, and has loaned his heretofore good name to publish a deliberate half-truth.
